HCLTech boosts AI, ML offerings with new Microsoft Azure specializations

NEW YORK, US and NOIDA, India, March 22, 2024—HCLTech, a leading global technology company, has received two new Microsoft Azure specializations for its portfolio of artificial intelligence (AI) and machine learning (ML) solutions.

The new specializations – AI and Machine Learning on Microsoft Azure; and Build and Modernize AI Apps with Microsoft Azure – underscore HCLTech’s expertise in delivering end-to-end AI and ML solutions with its Scale AI data science platform that allows enterprises to rapidly develop and deploy custom ML models. The platform enables companies to deliver world-class customer experiences, streamline operations and facilitate intelligent decision-making.

With this, HCLTech has 21 Microsoft specializations covering Azure, modern workplace, security, analytics and business applications, in addition to AI and ML.

"Our Scale AI platform facilitates the adoption and implementation of Azure AI solutions for clients. The latest AI specializations recognize our deep expertise in Microsoft technologies and our comprehensive approach to AI innovation, which enable us to help enterprises achieve seamless integration of AI across their entire ecosystem," said Vijay Guntur, President, Engineering and R&D Services, HCLTech.

With its full technology stack, engineering expertise and several years of working experience in AI, HCLTech enables enterprises to unlock the best value from their technology investments and drive business transformation.
